

Memorial flame

News-Journal/ DAVID TUCKER

Mark Chew, a North Port artist, installed his commissioned sculpture designed to honor veterans of the Korean War on Friday in the Memorial Gardens of the Ormond Memorial Art Museum. A volunteer selection committee comprised of artists, military personnel and community volunteers chose Chew from applicants across the country. The new memorial is a contemporary vision of an eternal flame built of marine grade stainless steel. It's scheduled to be dedicated Nov. 11 at the annual Veterans Day tribute.
